01 / Evidence of the skill

Does the task show whether learners can do the intended skill?

Look at what learners must say, make, do, or decide.

Missing
Uses attendance or satisfaction in place of a skill check.

Needs work
The task covers the topic but only shows part of the skill.

Meets expectations
The response directly shows the skill.

Strong
A different task checks whether learners can use the skill again.

Does not apply - give a reason in Notes.

03 / Fair chance to respond

Could learners show the skill with the time, directions, and formats provided?

Check reading load, timing, and accessible ways to respond. Keep the core skill the same across options.

Missing
A barrier prevents some learners from responding.

Needs work
Some directions or demands get in the way of showing the skill.

Meets expectations
Time, directions, and response options fit the skill.

Strong
Alternative tasks or formats have been checked for comparable demands.

Does not apply - give a reason in Notes.

Would two reviewers give similar work a similar score?

Missing
No shared criteria.

Needs work
The criteria exist, but ratings are hard to tell apart.

05 / Missing and matched work

Can you tell who submitted work and whose results you can compare?

For before-and-after work, match each learner's attempts and record how many are missing.

Missing
Missing work is counted as failure or omitted.

Needs work
Totals lack a clear count of learners or matching method.

Meets expectations
Missing work is separate and change uses matched attempts.

Strong
The review also checks what missing work, task order, or top scores could hide.

Does not apply - give a reason in Notes.

06 / Next teaching decision

Do the results tell you what to change or keep next time?

Find the result behind the decision and how you will check whether the change helped.

Missing
No next decision.

Needs work
The recommendation is broad or based only on the total.

Meets expectations
A result on a specific criterion leads to a clear change or follow-up.

Strong
An owner, date, and comparable follow-up task are set.
